

National Presbyterian Church

Science and the Soul

Curt Thompson, MD

October 3, 2015

- There is No Such Thing As Science. Really?
- A World of Goodness and Beauty
 - The Gospel and the problem of language
 - Interpersonal Neurobiology and the Biblical Narrative
- Loving God with all your mind
 - A working engagement
 - The Love of Integration
 - Differentiation and Linkage
 - SIFT-B
 - Psalm 86:11
 - Neuroplasticity
 - The place of emotion
- The Nine Domains of integration
 - Consciousness
 - Vertical
 - Horizontal
 - Memory
 - Narrative
 - State
 - Interpersonal
 - Temporal
 - Transpirational and the Contemplative tradition

- Relationships: Rupture and Repair
- The Nature of Shame
 - Shearing Effect: The Gas, The brake...and the Clutch
 - Disintegration
 - Isolation
 - Self-perpetuating
 - Stasis
 - Condemnation
- In What Story Are You Living?
 - Human Development and Storytelling
 - Genesis 1, 2: Joy and Vocational Creativity
 - Genesis 3: the Disintegration of the World
- Healing Shame: the Experience of Being Known
 - Hebrews 12:1-2
 - The cloud of witnesses
 - How well are you paying attention: the distraction of sin
 - Fixing our eyes on Jesus: Luke 3:22
 - The practice of perseverance: Romans 5; James 1
 - Scorning Shame
 - the Shame Inventory
 - the Shame Attendant
 - Attuning to Joy
 - The necessity of community
- Healing Shame: Vocational Creativity
 - Family
 - Church
 - Education